Kindred Spirits

My name is Anne Shirley. Red hair is my life long sorrow.

Something I've been thinking about:

My sense of self is confused.
I spent so much time moving around when I was younger, and sometimes I felt that I had to be different depending on where I lived, and who I was with. I didn't really feel truly "myself" until I came to Avonlea, and I was welcomed and accepted, and people began to know me for my soul rather than my surface.
And being settled in my home for such a long time, I felt that I was in control of my life. I didn't know what the future was going to be, but I thought anything was possible. I had huge dreams. I had plans.
Going to university has been strange. A new city, a new school, new friends, new lives. I feel myself breaking out of who I used to be, and shedding some of the past, but I'm still the same person and I don't want to let go of the things I left behind. I don't really know where I'm going. I don't know what I want anymore. I feel fragile and skinless.
I also feel guilty about filming, now. I know that making videos has been something I've always done, and I like talking to you about my life, but I watched some of my old videos the other day, and it scares me how different I am. I feel like I've changed, and I don't know if people like me anymore. It shouldn't bother me as much as it does. But who was I? Who am I now?
How do so many selves exist in the same person. I'm confused.
Thanks for reading this, Kindred spirits. I just needed to ramble somewhere.
